FOR ASSISTANCE IN MAPPING YOUR DRIVE TO THE CHEC, SEE THESE LINKS:

Google Maps - Best source; actually pinpoints the CHEC address exactly. The CHEC building location is on the Northwest corner of the marked intersection.

Yahoo Maps - Gets close. Recognizes the highway, but not the street address. The actual building location is just a block east of where the label shows.

MapQuest - Doesn't recognize "Spur 399". This map shows the intersection of Medical Center Drive and Gateway Blvd., which is the intersection on the back side of the CHEC building.

Bing Maps - Doesn't recognize "Spur 399". This map shows the intersection of Gateway Blvd. and Central Expressway (US-75). The CHEC building location is a block east of where the label shows.

If using a mobile GPS device in your car or on your phone, please be aware that many of them will not be able to locate either "Spur 399" or the street address. You may want to try variations of the street name, such as "Texas Highway 399", or "Texas 399", or "Highway 399". If none of those work, try entering it as the intersection of "Medical Center Drive and Gateway Blvd.". Please note that many GPS units may direct you to "Spur Lane", which is NOWHERE near the CHEC building site.
