Rejoice in a Greener Holiday Season

Reduce consumption, recycle, re-give and rejoice in a greener holiday season. Learn how to enjoy the holidays without the waste by attending the “Living Green Through the Holidays” educational seminar.

Get a fresh outlook on controlling consumption and make your celebration an exercise in green living. A free seminar will be held for residents from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 12 at Parkway Service Center, 4120 W. Plano Pkwy. at Commerce.

“Living Green Through the Holidays” will feature several guest speakers, including: Kate Macaulay, co-owner of Green Living; Michele Carey-Davé, a passionate advocate for the environment and a self-described “locavore”; and, Kim Soto, Environmental Education Coordinator, City of Plano.

“We’re excited to have professionals sharing information about green gift-giving and local sourcing for holiday food,” said Deb Bliss, Sustainability Volunteer Coordinator. “With thoughtful choices and heightened global awareness, we can all make a difference this holiday season.”

Green Living is a store committed to protecting the natural environment by offering goods that respect the earth, its resources and its people while enabling customers to benefit from fair trade partnerships, global recycling and sustainable business practices.
