The Original Nerdfighters Are Coming to Plano!

John and Hank Green of the Great American Tour De Nerdfighting 2008 will make their only Texas appearance at the Davis Library, 7501-B Independence Parkway on Sunday, Nov. 2, from 12 to 3 p.m.

John Green is the award-winning author of “Looking for Alaska,” “An Abundance of Katherines” and his latest book, “Paper Towns.” Green has written for National Public Radio’s “All Things Considered,” and for Chicago’s public radio station, WBEZ. The movie rights to “Looking for Alaska” were acquired recently by Paramount and the screenplay is currently being written.

Hank Green founded EcoGeek.org because he was tired of debating the planet’s energy and resource problems, and decided instead to seek solutions. EcoGeek.org has evolved into a world-wide blog for innovative energy and recycling ideas.

Together, John and Hank are the vlogbrothers; one of the most popular (and nerdy!) channels in the history of YouTube. Their site has been featured on BBC radio and the “Wall Street Journal” and now has a dedicated like-minded fan base of over 20,000 viewers (Nerdfighters).

For further information on this and other free Plano Public Library System programs, visit www.planolibrary.org or call Davis Library at (972) 802-8000. Information on the Green brothers can be obtained at www.sparksflyup.com and www.nerdfighters.com.
