Several Plano City Council members will help celebrate National Library Week by serving as guest readers during Preschool Storytime at local libraries. The Plano Public Library System will commemorate the week by featuring the following guest readers:

- Deputy Mayor Pro Tem Lee Dunlap will read on Wednesday, April 28 at 10:30 a.m. at Haggard Library, 2501 Coit Road (972) 769-4250.
- Council Member André Davidson will read on Wednesday, April 28 at Davis Library, 7501 Independence Parkway (972) 208-8000.

The more than 1,300 Preschool Storytimes held each year at Plano libraries help prepare youngsters for school, and encourage families to develop a true love of reading. There are four different storytime formats designed for children newborn to age five, and there are family storytime programs formatted for all ages.

The American Library Association sponsors National Library Week, the first one in 1958, as an annual celebration of the contributions of our nation's libraries and librarians. All types of libraries – school, public, academic and special – participate each April.

For more information, visit planolibrary.org or call any of the libraries listed.
